VOLUME 76, NUMBER 3, SPRING 2010

- 262 Introduction to the Special Issue: Changing Conceptions of Special Education
Laura T. Eisenman and Ralph P. Ferretti
- 265 Evolving Interpretations of Educational Equity and Students With Disabilities
Margaret J. McLaughlin
Civil rights statutes, social science research, and accountability policies have shifted thinking about what constitutes an equitable education, exposing critical tensions among the core policy goals and assumptions underlying two major laws governing K-12 education
- 279 Justifying and Explaining Disproportionality, 1968–2008: A Critique of Underlying Views of Culture
Alfredo J. Artiles, Elizabeth B. Kozleski, Stanley C. Trent, David Osber, and Alba Ortiz
Ethnic minority students are disproportionately placed in special education. The authors analyze arguments that justify disproportionality, identify explanations of the problem, and critique the views of culture that underlie these explanations. Future directions are explored.
- 301 The “Blurring” of Special Education in a New Continuum of General Education Placements and Services
Douglas Fuchs, Lynn S. Fuchs, and Pamela M. Stecker
The authors describe IDEA and NCLB views on the nature of RTI and general and special education. The authors argue that neither view represents a credible conceptualization of how to educate children with severe learning problems.
- 325 The Political Dilemmas of Formative Assessment
Sherman Dorn
In this article, historical, cultural, organizational, and political perspectives are used to illuminate challenges with implementing structured formative assessment especially in the context of high-stakes accountability.

- 339 Early Childhood Intervention: A Promise to Children and Families for Their Future
Mary Beth Bruder
Following a review of the foundations and critical features of early childhood intervention, current challenges to effective delivery of evidence-based practices are considered. Recommendations are made for enhancing accountability, personnel development, and systems integration.
- 357 Special Education Teacher Quality and Preparation: Exposing Foundations, Constructing a New Model
Mary T. Brownell, Paul T. Sindelar, Mary Theresa Kiely, and Louis C. Danielson
The authors trace how historical conceptions of special education teacher quality and preparation changed in response to developments in special education research, policy, and practice, and chart some future directions for preparing special education teachers.
- 378 Commentary: Delivering Educational Services That Meet the Needs of All Students
Ralph P. Ferretti and Laura T. Eisenman
- 300 PROFESSIONAL OPPORTUNITIES
- 355 INDEX OF ADVERTISERS

STATEMENT OF PURPOSE

Exceptional Children, an official journal of the Council for Exceptional Children, publishes original research and analyses that focus on the education and development of infants, toddlers, children, youth, and adults with exceptionalities. This includes descriptions of research, research reviews, methodological reviews of the literature, databased position papers, and policy analyses. Exceptional Children publishes quantitative, qualitative, and single-subject design studies.

Selection of manuscripts for publication is based on a blind peer review process (the identity of the authors not known to the reviewers). Reviewers evaluate manuscripts for the importance of the work, including adequacy of the rationale for the study or paper, scope and adequacy of the literature review, soundness of the methods, educational implications, and quality of writing. Author guidelines are available from the Editor or from CEC headquarters.

Articles should be submitted online at <http://journals.cec.sped.org/ec/>
