- 390 Preview
Steve Graham
- 391 The Role of Domain Expertise in Beginning Special Education Teacher Quality
Mary T. Brownell, Anne G. Bishop, Russell Gersten, Janette K. Klingner, Randall D. Penfield, Joseph Dimino, Diane Haager, Shailaja Menon, and Paul T. Sindelar
This research examines dimensions of beginning special education teacher quality: knowledge for teaching reading and observed classroom practices. Knowledge for teaching reading does not predict observed classroom practice, but classroom practice predicts students' reading gains.
- 412 Predictors of Change in Eligibility Status Among Preschoolers in Special Education
Tamara C. Daley and Elaine Carlson
Data are drawn from a nationally representative sample of preschoolers to examine which factors are associated with children no longer receiving special education services over a 2-year period.
- 427 The Impact of Specific Language Impairment on Adolescents' Written Text
Julie E. Dockrell, Geoff Lindsay, and Vincent Connelly
Children with specific language difficulties experience difficulties with writing. A cohort of 58 children with SLI were followed from 8 years of age to 16. Spelling and vocabulary levels predicted text production at age 16.
- 447 Effects of a Bundled Accommodations Package on High-Stakes Testing for Middle School Students With Reading Disabilities
Jack M. Fletcher, David J. Francis, Kimberly O'Malley, Kim Copeland, Paras Mehta, Cathy J. Caldwell, Sharon Kalinowski, Victoria Young, and Sharon Vaughn
A bundled accommodations package increased the pass rate of middle school students with word reading disabilities on a high-stakes reading test, but less robustly than in a previous study of Grade 3 students.

- 464 Motor Skill Performance of Children and Adolescents With Visual Impairments: A Review
Suzanne Houwen, Chris Visscher, Koen A.P.M. Lemmink, and Esther Hartman
 A content and methodological review on studies about variables that are related to the motor skill performance of children and adolescents with visual impairments.
- 493 Differential Effects of Peer Tutoring in Co-Taught and Non-Co-Taught Classes: Results for Content Learning and Student-Teacher Interactions
Kimberly A. McDuffie, Margo A. Mastropieri, and Thomas E. Scruggs
 This study investigated the differential effects of a peer-tutoring intervention on the academic achievement of seventh-grade science students with and without disabilities in co-taught and non-co-taught settings.

STATEMENT OF PURPOSE

Exceptional Children, an official journal of the Council for Exceptional Children, publishes original research and analyses that focus on the education and development of exceptional infants, toddlers, children, youth, and adults. This includes descriptions of research, research reviews, methodological reviews of literature, data-based position papers, and policy analyses. Exceptional Children publishes quantitative, qualitative, and single-subject design studies. The journal also includes reports of official actions of the governing bodies of CEC.

Selection of manuscripts for the publication is based on a blind peer review process (the identity of the authors not known to the reviewers). Reviewers evaluate manuscripts for the importance of the work, including adequacy of the rationale for the study or paper, scope and adequacy of the literature review, soundness of the methods, educational implications, and quality of writing. Author guidelines are available from the Editor or from CEC headquarters.

Four copies of all manuscripts as well as an electronic copy on a 3½" disk or CD (Microsoft Word or RTF file) should be submitted to Steve Graham, Editor, Exceptional Children, Vanderbilt University, P.O. Box 228, Department of Special Education, Nashville, TN 37203. Authors should include a cover letter indicating that the manuscript has not been previously published and is not currently under consideration elsewhere. The cover letter must also indicate if data from the manuscript is part of a larger study or if any part of the data has been included in another paper.

EXCEPTIONAL CHILDREN (ISSN 0014-4029) is published 4 times per year in the Fall, Winter, Spring, and Summer by the Council for Exceptional Children, 1110 North Glebe Road, Suite 300, Arlington, Virginia 22201-5704. Members' dues to the Council for Exceptional Children include $24.00 for annual subscription to EXCEPTIONAL CHILDREN and $36.00 for TEACHING EXCEPTIONAL CHILDREN. Subscription to EXCEPTIONAL CHILDREN is available without membership; U.S. institution/library annual subscription $155, Canada $160, foreign air $190. Single copy price is $25.00 (within last 3 years). U.S. periodicals postage is paid at Arlington, Virginia 22204 and additional mailing offices.
